HUMMEL FIGHTS FOR DELAY

GETS A WRIT OF PROHIBITION FROM APPELLATE COURT.

Argument on Order Preventing Justice Davy From Trying the Case to Be Heard Tuesday-Indicted Lawyer Refuses to Plead-Asks for a Commission.

Abraham Hummel, who is under indictments for conspiracy and subornation of perjury growing out of the Dodge-Morse marriage and divorce tangle, obtained late yesterday afternoon from the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court a writ prohibiting Justice Davy from holding any further proceedings in Hummel's case.

Mr. Hummel's action is an unusual proceeding. He alleges that Mr. Jerome is attempting unjustly to "aggrieve and oppress him" and furthermore that he was compelled against his constitutional right to testify before the Grand Jury and that Justice Dayy has no jurisdiction. The argument on the writ will be heard next Tuesday. Farlier in the day Mr. Hummel showed very plainly that he is in no hurry for a trial District Attorney Jerome wants Hummel tried a week from next Monday. Mr. Hummel thinks he ought to have commission appointed to take the testimony of Mrs. Dodge-Morse, who is said to be in France.

When Mr. Hummel was arraigned before Justice Davy in the Supreme Court, Criminal Branch, yesterday morning to plead to the indictments, his counsel, DeLancey Nicoll handed this paper to Justice Davy:

"Upon our advice Mr. Hummel has to say that he respectfully refuses to answer these indictments by demurrer or plea. We feel, with the utmost deference to your Honor's views to the contrary, that they should have been quashed and set aside on the grounds urged in the recent motion.

Mr. Nicoll then set forth that the Court or Grand Jury had no jurisdiction, that Hummel had been compelled to be a witness against himself in violation of his constitutional privilege and that the Court had no power or authority to proceed with the case. Mr. Nicoll added;

"We now move, on those grounds, that this Court abstain from any further proceedings upon these indictments, that Mr. Hummel be not required to plead to them and that he be wholly discharged." "Well, what have you got to say?" asked Justice Dayy after reading the statement.

"We stand mute," replied Mr. Nicoll. "Then." said Assistant District Attorney Rand, "I move that the trial be set for June

Mr. Nicoll looked surprised. Hummel looked worried. He whispered to Mr. Nicoll, who then said that it was his intention to apply for the appointment of a commission to take the testimony of witnesses out of the State.

"This is alleged to be a conspiracy." continued Mr. Nicoll, "implicating certain persons in the divorce proceeding in the case of Dodge vs. Dodge. Ex-Justice Fursman and Mr. Hummel acted as counsel. It may be necessary for us to take the testimony of other persons in the transaction outside of Charles F. Dodge. I shall deem it my duty to take the testimony of deem it my duty to take the testimony of Mrs. Dodge, or Mrs. Morse, whatever her name may be, and others."

"What do you expect to prove by those witnesses?" inquired Mr. Rand.

"That there was no conspiracy," promptly answered Mr. Nicoll.

"Oh. but what are the facts that you want to prove?" demanded Mr. Rand.

Mr. Nicoll again replied that he wanted to show that there was no conspiracy. to show that there was no conspiracy.

Mr. Rand informed him that he was stating a conclusion. "Maybe they want a commission to take testimony in France or said Mr. Rand.

Honolulu, "said Mr. Rand.

Unless a commission was appointed,
Mr. Rand urged, the trial should begin a week from Monday. Even if a commission was appointed, Justice Da. y remarked that he saw no reason why the trial should not begin on July 1.

"Not at all." protested Mr. Nicoll. "Mr.
Rand and I will protably have to go abroad to take the testimony, and when we get through it is hardly possible that we would be in a hurry to return to New York.

"In that event." said Justice Davy, "I could see that the matter would be delayed at great length. But there must be no unnecessary delay."

After more argument it was finally de-

at great length. But there must be no unnecessary delay."

After more argument it was finally decided that Mr. Nicoll would make his motions for the appointment of a commission on next Wednesday. It is understood that the commission will be asked in order to take the testimony of Edward Bracken, who is also indicted. Bracken is the private detective who is said to have handled the detective who is said to have handled the money that was given to Dodge in Texas.

TO TURN TABLES ON LABOR MEN.

Offer Was Made to Settle Strike, It Is Said, for a Certain Sum of Money.

CHICAGO, June 2.- The disclosures made by President Shea of the Brotherhood of Teamsters and Albert Young, former head of the Teamsters' National Union, to the Grand Jury of alleged attempts by prominent employers to bribe them are likely to react and may result in indictments for criminal libel. States Attorney Healy said to-day that no indictments could be voted on the evidence so far laid before the Grand Jury on the charges of graft, but said he was working in a new direction. It is known that the employers are preparing to spring counter charges against

From an authoritative source it was learned to-day that an offer to settle the present strike for a stipulated sum of money had been made on May 12. It was said that the man who was acting as the go-between was now out of the city. The Grand Jury will adjourn to-morrow, and it is said to be the intention of the employers to keep their secret until next week, when they say they will turn the tables on the labor men.

Following a conference between team owners and teamsters in Mayor Dunne's office to-day the teamsters' joint council to-night decided to refer the question of making deliveries to strikebound houses to the Truck Drivers' Union. A special meeting of that union to vote on the question will be held on Tuesday night, and until that time the matter will stand as it is.

Rioting increased throughout the city to-day, especially in the lumber districts, and the attacks of the mobs were so persistent in three instances that the police guarding the wagons were compelled to use their revolvers. Shots were fired over the heads of the crowds, and additional policemen were summoned on riot to settle the present to settle the present to section distincts the auditorium annex association held at the auditorium annex and C. EXTRA SESSION JUNE . O.

That's Malby's Prediction-Thinks Hooke

Case Will Go Over. Senator George R. Malby, who came down from Albany yesterday after talking with Gov. Higgins said that he thought the special session of the Legislature would be called about June 30 and that it would sit for about thirty days. He doubted if a decision would be reached in the trial of Justice Hooker at that session. It was certain, he said, that Justice Hooker would ask for time and that consent would be given, which would probably mean that it would be left to the regular session.

"The special session," said Senator Malby, "will undoubtedly cause a great deal of irritation among the members of the Legislature, because they will be called upon to give up part of the summer to attend the session, and if any attempt is made to bring up such matters as gas or the Equitable affairs I think it is safe to prophesy that not all the sergeants-at-arms who could be employed will be able to prevent the majority of the members suddenly finding that their presence is needed in Europe."

JERSEY'S DESERTED VILLAGE. Allaire, as a Last Blow, Is Taken Off the List of Post Offices.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., June 2 .- Famous nearly eighty years ago as the home of one of the largest iron smelting industries in New Jersey, famous as the site of the largest brick building in New Jersey in the early '30s, famous as the birthplace of the wife of John Roach, one of America's foremost shipbuilders and famous in the last decade as the "deserted village," with its former grandeur long departed and only ruins remaining, the town of Allaire, in Monmouth county, twelve miles south of Freehold. the county seat, will be erased from the postal map within a few days. For several years the postal receipts at the post office of Allaire have been growing less and less, until the salary of the postmaster, E. H. Height, for the past year was the small stipend of $68. This was little more than $5 a month. Tiring of the work for so small a compensation, Mr. Height decided to relinquish the office. The Post Office Department notified Benjamin F. Howell, the Representative for the Third Congress district, and he in turn communicated with some of the leading residents in Monmouth county. It was all in vain. No one wanted to assume the responsibilities connected with the post office for os small a salary. As a result Mr. Howell has requested the Post Office Department to discontinue the office, and the residents to discontinue the office, and the residents of the deserted village will hereafter be obliged to go to Allenwood for their mail.

Founded late in the '20s by James Allaire of New York, the town grew rapidly and at one time was one of the largest towns in the east central part of New Jersey. Iron ore was taken there and smelted in a large furnace, and there were several large warehouses in which the finished product was stored. In 1835 the town had the was stored. In 1835 the town had the largest brick building then in existence in New Jersey. The Manasquan River ex-tended almost to the limits of the town, and medium sized boats came up the river with their cargoes.

The town continued to increase in size and commercial importance until close to 1840, when some improved smelting machinery put the process employed at Allaire out of date, and the business commenced to run down. People gradually moved away. In the course of time the big buildings and incompared became with the course of the course o ings and iron furnace became ruins, and the one surviving member of the family. GRAFT IN TRANSFER TICKETS.

PUBLIC SERVICE CORPORATION SAID TO HAVE LOST $150,000.

Patrons of the Road, Clerks in Big Stores, School Children, Motormen and Conductors All in It-The Fleid Is Broad and There Are Many Workers.

Detectives employed by the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey have unearthed a plot in which trolley car conductors, motormen, discharged employees, clerks in stores, regular patrons of the road and even school children have been taking part to cheat the corporation by a fraudulent use of transfer tickets. It is said that the company's losses for the last year by the successful operation of the scheme amounted to at least $150,000. The leading spirits in the game have their headquarters in Paterson. They have agents n Newark, Elizabeth, Jersey City, Hoboken, Bayonne and other cities along the line of the Public Service Corporation's trolley system where a sufficient number of crooked transfer tickets can be worked off with a

The investigators who are getting at the bottom of the plot have, it is said, found evidence connecting nearly 100 conductors and discharged employees with the crookedness, which has been going on for months.

Every transfer ticket turned in by a con ductor is supposed to represent a nickel paid by a passenger. Anywhere from 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 of tickets are received every month by the company from its 2.000 conductors and thousands of these bear evidence of having been fraudulently issued. There are several ways in which the transfers find their way into the hands of the traveling public, and then into the office of the company. Conductors in the office of the company. Conductors in the conspiracy punch large numbers of tickets and give them to other conductors, who work them into their receipts and extract a corresponding number of nickels. The proceeds are sometimes whacked up, but as a rule a conductor gets as many punched tickets as he gives out, working on the principal of reciprocity.

The detectives have learned that at least the detectives nave learned that at least five conductors' punches, originally used by discharged men, have been in the pos-session of employees of department stores in Newark for some time. It is believed that many tickets punched in these stores came in bunches from regular conductors on the lines. The tickets were numbed came in bunches from regular conductors on the lines. The tickets were punched at any time of day desired by the prospective purchaser and they two or three cents aplece. The manipulators of these contraband punches also used them in repunching transfer tickets on which the time punched had elapsed. They filled in the first hole punched with the small bit of paper clipped out by the second punch. Thousands of these crocked tickets have been detected in the auditor's office.

It is said that certain persons have made a regular business of gathering up transfers which passengers asked for with no inten-tion of using. The transfers would be repunched and sold at a reduced rate to anybody who wanted to buy them. Small boys made a regular business of picking them up wherever they could and selling them to the men who knew how to work them off on the company.

The identities of many who have been engaged in the wholesale plot to swindle the company were learned by detectives who secured jobs in stores and factories and also worked on the trolley cars as green and also worked on the trolley cars as green motormen and conductors.

The fact that the scheme to defraud the company has been working so beautifully for such a long time without detection has led to the belief that somebody in the auditor's office was mixed up in the conspiracy. General Auditor Matthew J. Boylan is said to be the man who discovered the wholesale frauds.

YALE AFTER FITZPATRICK.

Report That Easterners Are Seeking

Michigan Coach to Succeed Murphy. There is a report from the West, which became public yesterday that Michigan's track athletic coach and general supervisor of athletics, Keene Fitzpatrick, has been asked by Yale to come East to succeed Mike Murphy. Fitzpatrick has made no answer to the request, the story goes, but it is well understood at Ann Arbor that he is in the last degree unlikely to quit the Michigan institution. Fitzpatrick has had great sucess with the Michigan teams and the men would make almost any concession to avoid

Fitzpatrick was at Yale in 1896 and for two years thereafter. He then went back to Michigan to take charge of the university gymnasium, with a faculty position as director of athletics. Fitzpatrick is a New Englander and made his mark in athletics as a sprinter and made his mark in athletics as a sprinter. He was a member of the great fire brigade team of Natick, Mass., which engaged in hose running contests at the different county fairs. On this team were Mike Murphy and Piper Donovan, reputed to be the first man ever to have run the 100 yards in 9 3-5 seconds, to have run the 100 yards in 9 3-5 seconds, which is credited to him as a professional record. Fitspatrick first went to Yale in 1890 as an assistant coach and staved for two years. Then he went West to the Detroit A. C., Two years later he became trainer of the University of Michigan, developing a football team which defeated Cornell, 12 to 4, and won the Western championship. It was considered a great feat. The following year the team again beat everything in the West, but was defeated by Harvard, 4 to 0. Fitzpatrick had another term at Yale for two years following isse, but went back to Michigan, where he has been since. He has had almost the greatest possible success with his track team, having won the conference championship every year since 1900, and every dual meet except two for the same period, and never having been beaten in an indoor meet. TIMELY BOXING TALK. Puglilism Still Popular, as Proved by Number of Bouts to Be Held. Boying enthusiasts will not have cause to suffer from ennui during the summer if the present plans anent ring contests are carried The fistic promoters have and already a number of important matches have been arranged, with the prospect of more to follow. Then, with the fact that Battling Nelson is in the East and Jimmy Britt, the most talked about light weight in the country, intends to visit New York and other Eastern cities before long, things ought to be pretty lively in the pugilistic world during the next three months or so.

Two bouts have been arranged which are sure to arouse interest. They are the pro-posed meetings between Jack O'Brien and Jack Munroe and Bob Fitzsimmons and Mike Schreck. The last named is the man who conquered George Gardner in a twenty round bout, and who aspires to step into Jef-fries's boots some day.

Munroe has not been conspicuous in the pugilistic firmament since he was braten by the boilermaker. True, he has engaged in a number of bouts since then: but they have been with insignificant fighters who did not amount to anything. That O'Brien and saving, more because the public is anxious to know whether with more experience Munroe may amount to something. elever two-handed fighter and should bring all the good or bad qualities that the miner cossesses to the surface. Against Jeffries Munroe did not have much of a chance to demonstrate any of his so-called tunching has because the mill was too short. O'Brien will be at a disadvantage in point of weight when he faces Munroe. O'Brien has in the past met big men. They may not have been so large or so powerful as Munroe, but they were men who knew a good deal about boxing just the same. In England O'Brien never hesitated about going against opponents who had the better of the bargain by at least twenty pounds. Munroe is successful in with the Quaker, provided the contest is honestly fought, he will not have very much trouble in getting all the engagements he desires. It is said that he has picked up a lot about the manly art since Jeffries took desires. It is said that he has picked up a lot about the manly art since Jeffries took his measure. He will certainly need all this knowle dge when he faces O'Brien.

As to Bob Fitzsinmons's coming essay with Schreck, it must not be denied that the veteran Cornishman will have to muster up all of his strength and skill to win. Schreck is no novice. He is a well seasoned young fighter with a record to be proud of. When he faces Fitzsimmons he will enter the ring with confidence born of his recent victory over Gardner, a pugilist who made Fitzsimmons hustle every moment during their twenty round scrap. Fitz and Schreck are slated for a similar number of rounds at Salt Lake City on July 4. Local sports would be better pleased if the mill were nearer East so that they could attend, for it bids fair to be extremely interesting. All told, the boxing game will certainly enjoy a healthy vogue this summer.

Battling Nelson has had his chance in the East and was not found wanting. The fighting Dane met Abe Attell in a six round bout at Philadelphia a few nights ago and showed that he was a pugilist of exceptional merif. It was the old story of the rushing bruiser of indomitable courage against the skilled boxer. The result was that the fighter came out best or prefty near it. The mill lasted the limit, and according to the majority of the critics the Hebrew had the bestill fairly smothered Nelson with blows, the punched him when and where he liked and made a show of him. He landed on the jaw, face and ear and cut the Dane almost to ribbons. But Nelson stood the "gaff." He swapped blow for blow, sho chief aim being to tire Attell out, as has been the rule in almost every mill that Nelson has figured in. This is what he did against Young Corbett in their two mills, and when the proper time came he was in a fine position to deliver the final blow.

Nelson had Attell tired, so fatigued that in the final round the Californian just stalled.

what he did against Young Corbett in their two mills, and when the proper time came he was in a fine position to deliver the final blow.

Nelson had Attell tired, so fatigued that in the final round the Californian just stalled, welcoming the final gong as if it were a lost brother. Nelsen's rushing tactics, his punches and weight told, and had the mill continued another round or so there is no doubt that Attell would have been counted out. But in praising Nelson, Attell's performance must not be overlooked. He went out of his class and took the match on at a few days notice. Nelson, on the other hand, was well trained and ready for a grueling combat if it came his way. Attell in his fight with Nelson proved that he is a dangerous contender for featherweight honors. Had he the power behind those mosquito like thrusts, those short arm jabs that seem to come from nowhere, Attell would be the champion of all the smaller brigade beyond a doubt.

Nelson will not be allowed to rest while he is in the vicinity of New York. All the legilmate lightweights will trouble him, and if he is ably handled he ought to make plenty of money before he returns home. Joe Gans is hot on his trail for an encounter. Gans will not be denied as regards his getting to 133 pounds ringside. He stoutly maintains that he can make the weight, and deplores the fact that none of his so-called rivals will give him the chance. Al Herford, the negro's manager, informs The Sen that he would like to have Nelson and Gans exchange the fact that none of his assertion in all good faith, apparently, but none of the scales at 133 pounds and allow Nelson to come in at a notch suitable to the Dane's physique. Gans has made this assertion in all good faith, apparently, but none of the scales at 133 pounds. This is a great blot on his fine record. As long as the pair refrain from bexing again the tongues of the skeptics will continue to wag and say that Britt is his master. NEW JERSEY GOLF FINALS.

WARD AND SINCLAIR TO MEET FOR CHAMPIONSHIP.

Reinhart and Graham Put Out, the Latter on Twenty-first Hole-Buels On in Seven Other Events-Women in Metropolitan Circuit Matches on Three Links.

A miss of a two foot put on the home green at the North Jersey Country Club yesterday may have been as good as a championship to John M. Ward. Archie Graham the put, and, after three extra holes, Ward beat him out. To-day Ward will play in the final for the New Jersey association's title against W. M. Sinclair. The latter is only out of college since the fall. He was the winner of the Essex County Country Club open tournament last September, beating A. C. Travis of Harvard in the final

The morning winners in the championship were the two brisk shavers of the East Jersey League, Jerolemon and Sinclair. The latter, going out in 41, caught Reinhart napping and beat him out by 3 and 2. Harold Wilcox, doing an 84, only beat Moffat by 1 up. The remaining match was a sensational one. Archie Graham had Ward three down at the turn, but the latter was even at the fourteenth and then one down at the sixteenth. halved the seventeenth. Ward making a telling recovery from a topped drive, but Graham took three puts on the short home nole and enabled Ward to win in 3 to 4, which halved the eighteen holes. The first and second extra holes were halved in 4 and 5, when the match ended in Ward's favor on the short third hole, in 3 to 4, Graham again eeding three puts. For the eighteen holes the cards were: Ward, 42, 38-80; Graham, Sinclair and Jerolemon played their semi-

Ward and Wilcox, although they began and finished in sunshine, had a shower during the outward journey. It did not drive the small but enthusiastic "gallery" to shelter, however, nor stop the men from getting par holes. Ward topped into the bunker and so presented the first hole to Wilcox and on the next he drove out of bounds, but gained fully 220 yards with the ball dropped on the tee. Wilcox had the bunker on his second and they halve!.

The junior won the fourth, but Ward had the match square at the seventh and he took the lead at the eighth. It was pretty golf thereafter, but Wilcox, while driving the longer ball, had always too much to do with the irons and in putting and lost on the fifteenth green. At Montclair Ward has always beaten Wilcox, who said naively before the match that he would rather have had Graham to meet. All final rounds will be at thirty-six holes. The annual handicap at eighteen holes is also on for decision. Showers and thunderclaps did not cause any postponements of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association team matches scheduled for yesterday. In the first district schedule, Richmond county, which had a default against the Brocklawn team last week, had out its team for the first time. Mrs. Charles T. Stout was the captain, and the team, on the home links, defeated the Englewood visitors. Mrs. M. D. Paterson, the Englewood captain, doing 85 to Mrs. Stout's 89, beat Mrs. Stout by 2 up, her first losing match this season, but the home team just managed to pull out. The score was:
Richmond county—Mrs. Charles T. Stout, o Miss. Richmond county—Mrs. Charles T. Stout, 0; Miss Irving, 0; Mrs. Ralph Lane, 3; Mrs. G. Brophy, 3. Total, 6. Englewood—Mrs. M. D. Paterson, 2; Mrs. S. F. ATHLETES GOING ABROAD.

A. A. U. Takes Precautions to Prevent Their Taking Expenses From Clubs.

The Amateur Athletic Union of the United States has enacted legislation whereby foreign athlete coming to America canno compete until the national registration com foreign athlete coming to America cannot compete until the national registration committee grants to him a permit. They furthermore have made a rule whereby American athletes going abroad must obtain from the national registration committee a permit allowing them to compete as American athletes in foreign countries. It looks now as though there would be quite a large sumber of Americans visiting Europe the coming summer for the purpose of competition. Chairman James E. Suilivan of the committee has received applications from the following athletes; John B. Taylor, Jr., University of Pennsylvania; Edward S. Amsler, University of Pennsylvania; Edward S. Amsler, University of Pennsylvania; J. L. McGucken, Banks Business College, Philadelphia; Harry P. McDonald, New York city.

The above names were submitted to the national registration committee, which has agreed to allow these athletes to compete abroad on condition that upon their return to this country and within a week after their arrival home they shall furnish to the first home they shall furnish to the first hone they competed, the prizes they received, and information as to whether they had received from any club, association or individual, expenses for competing is any athletic meeting while abroad.

Furthermore, they must agree to allow the local representative of the national registration committee in whose district the athlete resides to examine the prizes if requested.

No application whatever has been received as yet from Mr. Hynes, the Irish runner, for permission to to compete unless has credentials from the Amateur Athletic Association of Ireland.

COST INSUR-ANCE INBUILD-ING CONSTRUC-TION - the builders' guaranty as to MONEY cost and TIME cost - will soon be required by every estate and every individual before investing money in large buildings.

An individual builder who gives this guaranty while employing numerous detached and independent trades under many sub-contracts must necessarily insure himself against contingencies by exacting a high premium over legitimate cost. On the other hand, a CONSTRUCTION company-a company embracing the various building trades within its own organization—is able to furnish cost insurance without the exaction of any premium whatever. That is to say, COST INSURANCE is a part of a building contract that is in ALL respects the best obtainable.
